

The Volcanologist

Professor _____ was a leading volcanologist. They had published many books, appeared in several television programmes and had even once signed their name on _____ for a young fan. However, nothing compared to the adventure that they were about to undertake. Today, they were going to visit the _____ volcano named Mount _____.

Professor _____ double-checked their suitcase. Sure enough, they had packed everything on the list: _____ (_____), _____ and the all-important _____. Before long, the journey to Mount _____ was underway.

After _____ on an aeroplane, the professor arrived. They _____ made their way towards the volcano which was surprisingly located _____. As soon as they saw Mount _____, the professor exclaimed, " _____ " The volcano was _____ and was spitting out _____. _____, Professor _____ started to take photos of the incredible sight.

_____, the professor decided that
16. subordinate clause beginning with 'after' it was time to leave. They looked through their notes and _____. Although 17. verb (past tense)
they had studied volcanoes for many years, there was still one question left unanswered:
' _____'
18. question
To find the answer, Professor _____ would have to travel farther than any
1. proper noun
volcanologist had ever travelled before.

Grammatical Features

Complete each box with an example of the grammatical feature shown.

1. proper noun	2. determiner + singular noun	3. adjective
4. proper noun	5. determiner + plural noun	6. relative clause beginning with 'that'
7. determiner + singular noun	8. singular noun	9. -ing verb
10. -ly adverb	11. prepositional phrase	12. exclamation
13. adjective	14. noun phrase (at least three words long)	15. adverbial phrase (manner)
16. subordinate clause beginning with 'after'	17. past tense verb	18. question