

Tower Hamlets Parent and Carer Council

Working together - giving families a voice

What is the Parent and Carer Council (PCC)?

The PCC is Tower Hamlets' main family forum. Parents and carers are welcome to come along, listen to other parents and key speakers and give their views about services that are available to parents across the borough. It is also the best way to get involved with local consultations, help us identify gaps in support for families (in education, health or parenting), and discuss national issues that may also affect parents locally.

Why should I get involved?

Local families know what support services work in the borough – and what needs improvement. The PCC gives parents and carers the opportunity to share information about education, health and community safety in the borough, so that Tower Hamlets can offer the best possible services to families now and in the future.

We provide free training to support your involvement with the PCC, and you can be involved as little or as much as you want to.

Who can join?

Parents or carers with a child from birth to 25, who live in the borough or have a child attending a school in Tower Hamlets, are welcome to join. Representatives from other Tower Hamlets parent groups and forums are also very welcome.

When and where does the PCC meet?

The PCC meet three times a year in accessible, child friendly venues across the borough. A free crèche and refreshments are also provided.

For details on the next PCC meeting and to see a short film which highlights the ways that parents are using parent forums to make a real difference to their children's lives, visit www.towerhamlets.gov.uk/parentcouncil
